Come join us from 9 am to 12 am for coffee, snacks and information!

In October of this past year new regulations for a farm of ANY size that produces manure or land application manure were promulgated. The new regulations require everyone to maintain records on manure and animal management on operation.

The Berks County Conservation District, in partnership with Penn State Cooperative Extension, is here to provide up-to-date regulations for local farmers. In addition we are also here to provide the technical assistance for completing all required elements.

* If you require transportation please contact the District ****

This event is free and open to all. Please return attached form to the District by January 20, 2012.

Learn cool stuff about Linglostown that few know about

Here's another edition of Backyard News...

Let's give three cheers for Linglostown Area Civic Association for participating in the state's "Adopt a Highway" program. The group will pick up trash on N. Mountain Road from the square to the American Legion, and along a section of Linglostown Road that includes the village.

Linglostown Life is offering you the opportunity to worship during the week beginning Thursday, July 12.

The church leaders know that many people like to travel or visit family and friends on the weekend, so they invite Gazette readers to join them on Thursday nights in July and August beginning at 7:30 pm. They offer a family friendly and relaxed time of worship that will end at 8:15 pm.

The opera is coming to Linglostown on Saturday, June 23, and Sunday, June 24.

Two performances of "Met a Tenor" and "Famous Opera Choices" will take place at Linglostown Life at 7:30 pm Saturday and 2 pm Sunday.

Richneck Vacation Center in Linglostown was recently spotlighted on a radio show hosted by Michael Parks of WHP 540 AM. Margie and Barry Richneck have helped me with vacation planning in the past and I was very satisfied with their service. CLICK HERE to listen to the show.

Is Google Making Us Stupid?
